Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Fashion is about showing off your best self to the world. While brands have long faced scrutiny over their production practices – the industry historically relied on exploitative labour, sweatshops, child labour and even slavery; disproportionately affecting women and people of colour – their commitment to sustainability has mostly existed behind a curtain.

Consumers are now more acutely aware of the fashion industry's environmental footprint and are seeking ways to reduce it. Consequently, brands are capitalizing on sustainability as a marketing tool, crafting compelling narratives that resonate emotionally to create strong bonds with consumers and imbue items with a sense of uniqueness and value. However, this approach has given rise to greenwashing, where brands make misleading claims about their environmental efforts to appear eco-friendly without implementing substantial changes.

There are several factors that have contributed to the problem of greenwashing in the fashion industry. The current design approach in the fashion industry often prioritises immediate sales over the end-of-life considerations of products, leading to significant sustainability challenges. Companies can make misleading environmental claims due to a lack of comprehensive material knowledge and clear definitions of terms such as 'eco-friendly' and 'recycling'. Consumers, who generally know even less about these materials, are unfairly burdened with making sustainable choices. Addressing this issue requires robust oversight and regulatory frameworks that establish clear criteria for safe, durable, and sustainable textiles, ensuring that manufacturers and consumers are better informed and aligned towards genuine sustainability.

While plastic and synthetic materials are often perceived as harmful, there is a push to replace them with "natural", "bio-based", or biodegradable alternatives. However, these materials can be misleading to consumers. For instance, Piñatex® (pineapple leather) is made from pineapple plant waste but contains 28 percent PLA and PU (plastics). This mixture of plant and synthetic materials limits its end-of-life options to landfill or incineration, misleading consumers into thinking they are purchasing a wholly natural or biodegradable product. Additionally, even natural fibre products can be guilty of greenwashing. These products may be marketed as compostable or biodegradable, but brands often do not disclose any chemicals or treatments used.

Selective transparency and tokenism are common in greenwashing. Companies highlight sustainable materials without providing comprehensive lifecycle information, and incorporating small amounts of sustainable materials can attract eco-conscious consumers without significant business practice changes. Luxury positioning of sustainable products can also indicate that these items are more about brand image than making sustainable options accessible to all.

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

While the meaning of “fast fashion” is fairly straightforward-the description is in the name, after all-understanding why it has become so ubiquitous requires a deeper look at the clothing industry as a whole. At the most basic level, fast fashion means quickly produced trends that are sold at low price points. But producing and consuming clothing at this rate implies that we are taking a massive toll on both the planet and the people.

Despite the popularity of sustainable and ethically made fashion among younger generations, fast fashion is still growing rapidly in volume and profit. Compare this: In the late 1800s, collections were produced in two seasons: Fall/Winter and Spring/Summer; but now brands have outrun themselves by producing clothing at upwards of 52 “micro-seasons” per year. This means that fast fashion is showing no signs of slowing down and more clothing will end up in landfills and second-hand markets around the world.

The impact of fast fashion on the environment is a layered issue. For starters, a March 2023 report by the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) said that fashion was responsible for up to 10% of annual global carbon emissions. On the production side, overusing oil-based textiles like polyester means that brands rely on fossil fuels to create new products.

Nestle is the world's leading nutrition, health and wellness company. It employs around 333,000 people and has 461 factories in 83 countries around the world.

Nestle operates within complex supply chains. Its cocoa supply chain starts with cocoa from farmers, who grow the crops, to cooperatives which manage the sale of the crops, to processors and manufacturers that create chocolate products, to retailers such as supermarkets; and finally to consumers who purchase the products.

The Nestle Cocoa Plan was launched in October 2009 in Africa. The initiative aimed to help cocoa farmers to run profitable farms, respect the environment, have a good quality of life and give their children a better education.

The Cocoa Plan is a clear example of Nestle creating shared value both for the company and for cocoa farmers, their families and local communities. Through it, Nestle benefitted from ensuring the supply of high quality and sustainably sourced cocoa for its products. It also ensures to support the cocoa farming community's development and meets certified ethical and environmental standards.

The Cocoa Plan is an evolving and growing programme. Each year more cooperatives of farmers are being added to the plan. The plan has also been extended to other countries such as Indonesia, Ghana, Venezuela and Ecuador.

Zara, a flagship brand of the Spanish retail giant Inditex, stands as a beacon of innovation in the fast-paced world of fashion retailing. Known for its ability to deliver the latest fashion trends to the market at breakneck speed, it successfully managed its inventory costs.

Central to its success is its unique approach to Inventory management, which draws inspiration from the Kanban's principle, a scheduling system for lean and Just-in-time (JIT) production. This analysis delves into how Zara has adopted and implemented principles akin to Kanban to revolutionize its operations, leading to reduced inventory levels, decreased lead times and an enhanced ability to respond to rapidly changing fashion trends. The Kanban principles are used to visualize and manage the process, allowing teams to define their own practices and provide transparency of work, reliance on discipline which leads to minimisation of wastage and increase in productivity. Zara has set a new standard for fast fashion, demonstrating that it is possible to be both agile and sustainable. While Zara's implementation of Kanban principles has been largely successful, it is not without challenges.

स्पैनिश रिटेल दिग्गज इंडीटेक्स का फ्लैगशिप ब्रांड जारा तेजी से बदलती फैशन रिटेलिंग की दुनिया में नवाचार का संकेत-दीप है। बिजली की गति से बाजार में अद्यतन फैशन प्रवृत्तियों को प्रस्तुत करने की अपनी योग्यता के कारण प्रसिद्ध जारा अपनी मालसूची लागत को सफलतापूर्वक प्रबंधित करती है।

इसकी सफलता का केन्द्रीय बिन्दु मालसूची प्रबंधन के प्रति इसकी अनूठी शैली है जो झुकाव (लीन) और समय-बद्ध (जेआईटी) प्रबंधन हेतु अनुसूचीकरण प्रणाली के कानबान सिद्धांतों से प्रेरणा ग्रहण करती है। यह विश्लेषण पड़ताल करता है कि कैसे जारा ने अपने प्रचालनों में क्रांतिकारी परिवर्तन के लिए कानबान के समरूप सिद्धांतों को अपनाया और उन्हीं स्वीकृत किया, जिससे मालसूची स्तरों में कमी आई, लीड समय कम हुआ और तेजी से परिवर्तनशील फैशन प्रवृत्तियों का प्रत्युत्तर देने की योग्यता में वृद्धि हुई। कानबान सिद्धांत प्रक्रिया का दृश्यांकन और प्रबंधन करने में प्रयुक्त होते हैं, जो समूहों/दलों को अपने कार्य-व्यवहार परिभाषित करने और कार्य की पारदर्शिता प्रदान करने, अनुशासन पर निर्भरता की अनुमति देते हैं, जिससे अपव्यय कम होता है और उत्पादकता में बढ़ोत्तरी होती है। जारा ने त्वरित फैशन के लिए नवीन प्रतिमान स्थापित किए हैं, तथा प्रदर्शित किया है कि कुशल होना और संभालना, दोनों होना संभव है। हालांकि, जारा द्वारा कानबान सिद्धांतों का क्रियान्वयन मोटे तौर पर सफल रहा है, पर इसमें चुनौतियाँ भी आई हैं।
