Q.No: 6 Read the following passage and answer the questions based on it:
Movies, being a potent medium of storytelling, have a tremendous influence on society, determining cultural norms, public opinion, and individual opinions. Films are more than a form of entertainment; they represent and caricature social values and are a mirror to the collective consciousness of society. Movies can introduce new ideas, challenge old prejudices, and initiate serious discussions on social issues.Legendary characters and stories can touch the hearts of generations, defining fashion, vocabulary, and even ambition. The pictorial and emotional power of film provides a special kind of empathy, taking viewers into other worlds and experiences, hence understanding and expanding horizons. Still, this power has responsibility; movies can reinforce stereotypes, help spread harmful ideologies, or offer unrealized versions of life, and all the more reason to embrace critical interaction with the narratives we watch.

What is one of the major influences of movies on society according to the text?

They only entertain and do not impact societal values

They determine cultural norms, public opinion, and individual opinions

They are used primarily for advertising products

They focus solely on fantasy and escapism
